PENN-OHIO 20th CONVENTION ATTRACTS THOUSANDS OF COLLECTORS

COLLECTOR-DEALER DISPLAYS VALUED AT SEVERAL MILLION DOLLARS

A coin collectors dream, the Wells Fargo is the theme of this exhibit by Philip Williams of Mt. Lebanon, Pa. This array of coins represents the many rare and valued coins that were shipped via "Wells Fargo Express". It is guarded by one of its colt revolvers. The coins are dated from 1793 to 1880; 1/2¢ to $50. gold pieces. These coins are valued at $7,000.

for his presentation "A Coin Collectors Dream" which was a 'Wells Fargo Bag, guarded by an original six-shooter of that era, from which literally hundreds of U.S. rarities flowed'. The novel presentation and actual rarity of the coins therefrom made this exhibit the most photographed exhibit of the convention.

The committees, headed by Ray Byrne, General chairman and President of the host club—Pittsburgh Numismatic Society—did a grand job in coordinating all events. The list of the committees headed by Prosper E. DeVos as co-chairman with Robert G. Sommers in charge of the bourse, Richard Yeager, registration, I.B. Lando, exhibits, Harry C. Bartley-Phil Williams, promotion; Howard D. Gibbs, publicity; James Ridgeway and John Speicher - displays; Mrs. Clara DeVos and Mrs. Margaret Byrne-Ladies Activities; Sam J. Kabealo, founder of the Penn-Ohio as cataloguer and Auctioneer who was aided by Walter Breen and Michael Kolman, Jr., Pres. of Penn-Ohio; and protection for the show by Meyer Goddy, George Romah and Joseph Meszaros—all members of local coin clubs who are also city police.

The banquet, which was completely sold out before the affair, was held Saturday evening, Nov. 15th in the beautiful Georgian Terrace room of the Webster Hall Hotel where the convention was quartered. The principal speaker was James E. Charlton, internationally known cataloguer and numismatist of the Canadian Coin Exchange. Also in attendance at this function were George F. Marlier, oldest living A.N.A. member at 92; Lewis M. Reagan, General Secretary of the A.N.A., C. C. Shroyer, Board of the ANA, all past-presidents of Penn-Ohio since its founding in 1938. The banquet MC, Homer Swanson, president of the Shenango Valley Coin Club did a magnificent job in handling the program and had the dealers and collectors back to the convention floor just 1-hour 15 minutes after the invocation.

Some 1376 coin collectors from all parts of the nation registered together with several hundred guests at the 20th Anniversary Convention of the Penn-Ohio Coin Clubs held in Pittsburgh, Pa., November 14-16, 1958. It was the largest registered gathering of collectors ever held.

Outstanding exhibits from all parts of the country and Canada were shown and the finalists as selected by the judges' committee headed by William W. Woodside, curator of Coins at The Carnegie Museum found "Best of Show" award going to Irving Moskovitz of Detroit with his excellent display of 'Gold Coins of the World'; 2nd Award went to the nationally famous numismatist, John J. Pittman of Rochester, N. Y. who exhibited U.S. and Canadian Gold and Silver Proof Sets; 3rd best ribbon was given to Gaston DeBello of Buffalo, N.Y. whose display of U.S. Pattern Gold and Silver Proofs were the talk of the convention. A very special award was given by the judges to Philip A. Williams, Pittsburgh Numismatic Society for his presentation "A Coin Collectors Dream" which was a 'Wells Fargo Bag, guarded by an original six-shooter of that era, from which literally hundreds of U.S. rarities flowed'. The novel presentation and actual rarity of the coins therefrom made this exhibit the most photographed exhibit of the convention.

AD FORMS CLOSE THE 20th OF EACH MONTH.

Entered as second class matter October 13, 1956 at the post office of Newark, New Jersey under the act of March 3, 1879.

We are proud to present to our readers and start the New Year with our first 24 page issue. Our thanks to the many who have helped make this possible. May, 1955 we published our first issue which was one sheet, our average paid subscriptions were about 40 per month. Today we have over 4,000 paid, or as the publications' survey circulation pull, we have 12,000 readers. Our average new subscriptions per month is 200. With your continued support we hope to bring to our readers more pages of interesting illustrated news, articles and other important items. Our sincere thanks and Best wishes for the New Year go to all of you.

Advertising Problems are sometimes overlooked by the collector, a better dealer-collector briefing merits consideration. Orders are sometimes put in from ads of the previous issue, if the stock is on hand and if the prices haven't changed the order may be accepted. But, usually the stock is exhausted and new stock was purchased at a higher price, thus the order is returned. We suggest orders be sent in as early as possible or before the next issue is due to avoid disappointment. An advertiser has about 15 days to get his ad together for the next issue. He must consider many factors in replenishing his stock and price sales. When writing for information be sure to enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for a quick reply. Where postage and insurance is involved be sure to send a liberal amount, the excess is usually returned.

Mint Error Collector prominently known for his huge collection and stock of some of the rarest mint oddities is, Michael Kolman Jr., of the Federal Coin Exchange. Mr. Kolman, President of the Penn-Ohio club and founder of the Mint Error Collectors' periodical, has contributed much to the interest and enjoyment of this field. We are pleased to have in this issue his two page advertisement.

(Big Joe) of the popular radio program, The Happiness Exchange, recently called and invited yours truly for another of our talks on numismatics. The main function of this broadcast is to bring happiness to the listeners. Besides the 3 previous talks Nick Salimbene and I gave, we arranged for other talks over the air. For our writer from Canada, Harold Don Allen, James A. Brown and Jack Nannery. Among the recent interviews given by Big Joe, on the Happiness Exchange, were the following celebrated people; Sophie Tucker, Joni James, Gloria Swanson, Talulla Bankhead and Mike Wallace. If you have occasion to listen to your radio tune in (WABC) 770 on your dial. The Happiness Exchange is on from 12 midnight to 6 a.m. — 7 days a week. It reaches Canada, the south and most of the midwest. You might hear me discuss our hobby and the Flying Eaglet.

(Big Joe), Rosenfield Jr. the director, is an ardent follower of the coin hobby. Through his purchases and donations of numismatic items from the listeners, he has accumulated for the purpose of helping the needy and the Happiness Exchange Foundation a huge valuable collection. This organization already has helped thousands of people and has built the Happiness Exchange Medical Center at 226 W. 42 St., N.Y.C. (Big Joe) says he will put a 2 page ad in our next issue. This will be an auction of every coin they have in good to VF, all lots must be sold. The proceeds will then be used to buy only choice and Unc. coins to further improve the collection fund. Watch for this big auction in our next issue.

LAST MINUTE FLASH — New Reverse design, on cent.

We received word of the design change and quickly called Mrs. Rae Biester, Supt. of the Phila. Mint for verification so we may pass on this information in time for our deadline.

The minting of the new cent will begin January 2, 1959 and will be released in time for Lincoln's Sesquicentennial birthday (150 years) February 12, 1959. The Obverse will be the same, the reverse will show U.S. of America, E Pluribus Unum, the Lincoln Memorial and One cent. The design was submitted by the Phila. Mint sculptor Frank Gasspar. Our February 1st, issue will have a photo and full details of the new design.

Dear Sir:

I am sending photographs of a couple of pennies I found during the month of October. The photographs should give a much clearer picture than I can detail in writing. Note the (we) on the Obv., of the 194? (4)-D also the distorted date, the cracks go completely thru the penny above Lincoln's head which isn't obvious from photo.

The 1927-S has the reverse of a cent incused vertically letters are backwards as if pressed in by another coin. Would like to add that I found a 1909-SVDB during the month, in fine condition, my first after going thru 182,000 pennies since June of this year. I am almost to run out of banks in this part of the Country.

Am enjoying your fine publication; it is the only link I have with the hobby as there are no coin clubs or serious collectors in S. W. Oklahoma.

M/Sgt. Harlan W. McDonald, Altus AFB, Okla.

WILLIAM G. SCOTT

Koin Collectors Kolumn

By Philip Rosenbaum

The story of American money occupies a very important part in the structure and construction from the very inception of the colonies.

Enterprising American individuals were responsible, following the War of Independence, for the issuance of the Articles of Confederation, adopted July 9, 1778, providing that Congress should have the sole right to regulate the alloy and value of coins struck under their own authority.

Each state, therefore, began to coin money. Vermont, Connecticut, Virginia, New Jersey, and Massachusetts erected its own mints, and formed the basis of early American coins.

On Jan. 15, 1782, Governor Morris proposed a decimal coinage ratio 1/1440 to a dollar, and a government mint was approved Feb. 21, 1782. No immediate action was taken until 1784. Thomas Jefferson, a member of the House of Representatives, brought in a report recommending the simple dollar unit and favored the decimal system, and remarked that, "The most easy ratio of multiplication and division is that of ten. President George Washington referred to it "as a measure which in my opinion has become indispensably necessary".

Congress gave formal approval to the basic dollar unit and dollar coinage ratio in its resolution of July 6, 1785.

On April 2, 1792, a bill was finally passed providing "that the money of the United States should be expressed in dollars or units, dimes (dimes) or tenth cents or hundreds.

The first coins struck were half dime (dimes) in silver and copper, and succeeded by copper for half cents and large cents in 1793.

Since the inception of the mint, the coinage of the Americas has been as follows, of which the following coins in use after 1793 have become obsolete, as the half-cent, large copper cent, two cent copper cent, three cent coins struck in two alloys as silver and nickel, five cents considered half dimes struck in silver, ten cents dimes struck in silver, twenty cents pieces, quarters, halves and dollars were all struck in silver. Gold coins were at a ratio of 15 to 1, when Hamilton recommended it. Gold became popular after the issuance of $1, 2½, 3, 4, 5, 10, 20 and 50 were struck and coveted as legal tender in preference to paper money or certificates. A great deal of paper money was issued during the Pre-Revolutionary period and as Congress did not have any money to redeem it, the expression concerning the value of the paper money was "Not Worth a Continental".

ROLLS MIXED LINCOLNS prior to 1940 - some prior to 1920. For standing Liberty Quarters with readable dates. Trade at face - The better your Quarters the more early mint marks you get. Send them along.

AIR MAN WINS COIN DESIGN PRIZE

CHRYSANTHEMUM design for a new 50 yen coin, drawn by S/Sgt. Pedro L. Trujillo, Johnson AB, won him a "third rank" prize of 5,000 yen in a contest sponsored by the Japanese Ministry of Finance. Part of his design will be used on one side of the coin. (USAF Photo)

TOKYO (S&S)—A chrysanthemum design for a new 50-yen coins has won an Air Force staff sergeant at Johnson AB third prize in a nationwide contest sponsored by the Japanese Ministry of Finance.

S/Sgt. Pedro L. Trujillo, a draftsman with the Management Analysis Div., 6041st AB Gp., said Monday the design he fashioned of Japan's national flower won him a "third rank" prize of 5,000 yen. A portion of his design will be used on one side of the coin.

He entered the contest in September, he said, when his wife Etsuko read of it in a Japanese newspaper. He was informed of his prize in a letter two weeks ago.

NUMISMATIC QUESTION - ANSWER BOX

By C. Lynn Glaser

Q. What is a pattern? — E. H., Aberdeen, Washington
 A. The term pattern covers several kinds of coins.
 Pattern Pieces — Specimens having a design for a coin other than that in use, or specimens of an accepted design but bearing a date prior to the year they were first coined for circulation.
 Experimental Pieces — coins struck from regular dies in an experimental alloy.
 Trial Pieces — Impressions from regular or experimental dies in soft metal to try out the die.

Q. What is a chipped planchet? — M. G., Ont., Canada
 A. A chipped planchet coin is a type of mint error. The chip is usually round since the planchet is often cut into by the punch stamping out the disks for coinage. Chipped planchets aren't very popular and collectors are cautioned when buying them because there are many fakes.

Q. What is the Blind Man's Nickel?
 A. The Famous 1882 "Blind Man's Nickel" is a pattern coin although it is not listed by Adams-Woodin. The design on the obverse is the same as the 1866 Shield Nickel; the reverse is the same as the Shield Nickel of 1883. The coin could be identified by feel because of bars which appear on the edge. There are 3 pieces of this coin known to exist.

Q. How was the 1955 Double Shift cent made? — J. G., Conshohocken, Pa.
 A. This coin was made with a die that was struck twice with the master hub, not with two blows from the die on the coin as some people believe. When the dies are being prepared they receive a series of blows with a master die, or hub. Apparently this 1955 die shifted after the first blow and was struck again at a different angle.

Q. I have heard of an 1837 token half cent. If this coin was struck by the mint why is it a token?
 A. The 1837 token half cent wasn't issued by the mint. It is just a hard times token and is listed as such in "Hard Times Tokens" by Low. This token is one of the many non-mint issues or even non coins that have been worked into coin collections that have no place there. Here is a brief description of the piece. Obverse: Eagle holding olive branch and some arrows with words; U.S. Standard Weight & Value 1837. Reverse: Words; Half cent worth of Pure copper.

I received a note from the well known author of several numismatic references, Walter Breen, suggesting that I make the following remarks about what appeared in this column in the November issue. First: LEAVE COIN CLEANING TO THE EXPERTS! Cleaning can enhance a coin's value only rarely and with great difficulty — but it can ruin a coin with no trouble at all! Second: Although the story of the Figure on the Indian head cent is traditional, Longacre himself said that the model was one of the Greco-Roman statues of Venus. Whether it was Longacre's daughter or a goddess the public, thinking it was an Indian, was fooled either way!

PAPER MONEY ROUND-UP "MICKEY MOUSE MONEY" OF W.W. II

By Harold Don Allen

Much of the world's paper money possesses an innate dignity which is striking to behold. You see it in the heavy lathwork, the classical vignette and the antiquated wording — proud traditions of a monetary past. You know it in the "look" of money, the "feel" of money, an indescribable "something" that serves to tell the genuine from the counterfeit note. Yet, I have before me, as I write this, two bills which would seem to contradict every phrase I have written. They are one pound notes of the Japanese Government, lithographed for circulation in captured Pacific islands with sterling currencies in World War II. One is counterfeit, and a crude job at that. The other I believe to be genuine. Even under the close examination of a hand microscope, it would be difficult to vouch — without close comparison — which is which. The paper is low-grade. The design lacks sharpness and intricacy, and the whole note gives evidence of being cheaply and hurriedly produced.

This is Japan's occupation currency of World War II as best known to paper money collectors, a series of lithographed notes in pesos, gulden, dollars, and rupees, tailored to fit the currency habits of Pacific territories occupied during the conflict, often backed by not so much as a promise to pay, and scorned by those upon whom they were forced. Yet, to the collector, these series can be interesting in their paradoxes: overly plentiful, and yet in a number of varieties very scarce; crudely produced and with no date, signatures or numbers, yet occasionally finely engraved and numbered in full; ignored and yet fascinating when given the attention they perhaps deserve.

The lithographed "occupation" issues, here under discussion, should not be confused with the home island Yen notes of the war years, which reflect a long, fine tradition of distinguished Japanese bank note art, nor with the overprinted and modified issues for Japanese troops. The occupation notes are perhaps best known in their fractional values, and especially in their Philippine ("peso") and Malayan ("dollar") releases. The Malayan denomination leads to the oft-quoted mis-statement that the series was dreamed up for U.S. invasion, a theory that the tropical "vignettes" promptly disprove. The Philippine values were a crude aftermath to the fine steel-engraved pesos of the U.S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing, known in the islands for decades: "Mickey Mouse money" was one of the derisive phrases for the occupation notes.

The general "mass-produced" effect shows up strikingly in the reuse of denomination devices and vignettes. Thus, the ten dollar of Malaya and the ten gulden for the Indies are identical except for their inscriptions. The Burma series all employ the temple vignette on ½ rupee and higher notes. Similarities — and duplicates — prove even more evident on fractional releases.

Serial numbers — and steel engraving — are generally associated with the first occupation series for the Philippines, depicting on all denominations the Rizal monument. Yet the "dollars" of Malaya also from time to time are to be seen with black serial numbers following the ever-present code letters. The note illustrated is the blue-green $10, bears the elusive digits, and is steel engraved. The accepted point of view is that the quality, numbered notes were the first issue, soon worn out and replaced by the more crude bills. A complete set of the lithographed issue for Malaya, 1¢ to $1000, has sold for $1, and $2 seems the current asking price. Many, obviously, came into Allied hands as formerly occupied territories were retaken.

Higher denominations in several series, nonetheless, are distinctly scarce, and the rupees for Burma (some say India), the gulden for the Dutch possessions and the sterling units for the British islands (some even claim Australia!) are challenging to collect. Here is another numismatic area where you can browse, collect as you will, and study a chapter of recent history — while building a fascinating note accumulation at very little cost.

"Not Worth A Billion"

(Concise Treatise on Ancient Egyptian Money)

by Clarence Fink

When disgruntled Americans during the Revolutionary war cursed their near worthless banknotes, and referred to cheap and valueless items as "not worth a Continental," they were merely repeating what irate first and second century Egyptian traders and buyers repeated countless times in the past when they mentioned their specie the "billion," a tetradachm of alloyed silver and copper minted at Alexandria.

The status of Egypt at that time, subjugated by Rome, was an enviable one for the conquered province, as they were allowed the rare privileged distinction of producing their own special currency. Though Roman gold was tops throughout the ancient world, there's no record of any of its silver or bronze coins ever having circulated in Egypt prior to 260 A.D. Along with the billons, large Egyptian bronze disks supplied the demands of the populace for small change.

Through the previous century it had been an imperial bad habit to tamper severely with the quality of metal until eventually it drove the actual value of Egyptian money to practically nil. Bronze was soon replaced with lead, with the billons almost fading away by being reduced to not more than two percent silver. Probably the main reason for the deterioration of the billion was not so much the greed of autocracy, as the blunt fact that the supply of silver was much lower than the general demand. The principal source of silver came from the mines of Laurium, which were fast becoming worked out.

Counterfeiters of Egypt didn't suffer the usual penalty of death which was meted out wholesale to people who committed various major and minor crimes, first made sure the offenders wouldn't pass any more of their spurious money by lopping off both hands of the criminals, making them living examples for others who might be tempted to facsimilate the regular coins of the realm.

Of special interest to coin collectors and students of ancient Egypt, was the coin of the Roman Emperor Hadrian (117-138) who spent most of his foreign traveling throughout the Egyptian provinces of his empire displaying liberality, political wisdom, and love of fine art. On this coin appears the inscription — "Hadrian Augustus, Consul 3d time, Father of the Country. Round the head of the emperor, and on the reverse, an emblem of the Nile - strong man surrounded by boys, representing the districts of Egypt, Sphinx and Crocodile, with S C for Decree of the Senate.

In the last year of the reign of Gallienus, Zenobia, Queen of Palmyra, once an ally of Rome, marched into Egypt and decisively defeated the armies Gallienus sent against her, and conquered the Roman province. Zenobia claimed she was the true descendant of Cleopatra and won the support of a strong Egyptian army. Aurelian at first recognized Zenobia as his colleague in the empire, and some of the Alexandria coins of this period highlight his head on one side, and the head of this Palmyrene queen on the other. Soon afterwards Aurelian warred against her, defeated and captured this renowned woman warrior, Egypt once more becoming a Roman province.

During the reign of the Ptolemies of Egypt there was established an iron-clad monopoly of coinage. Absolutely no foreign coins of any size or value were allowed to be circulated. Foreigners entering the country with their nation's currency were forced to give it up to the Egyptian Coinage authorities who then reminted the metal into Ptolemaic money. Having an abundant supply of copper, and the native population being used to the type of currency, they accepted the same as standard value. Thus Egypt by its deliberate currency isolation, separated itself from the rest of the Hellenistic world.

Specie from Ptolemaic mints was plentiful because silver and gold coins make up large part of our collections today along with the copper issues. Egyptian gods decorated the heavy copper coins which were the most popular money for the natives. Most citizens were unfamiliar with silver, but accepted the same and treated it like bullion. Philadelphus (Ptolemy II) of Egypt desired to put silver and gold specie out of use to the common Egyptian so that these two metals could be hoarded by royalty, and used by kings for their own use. Practically no gold disks were used for home trade. The beautiful issues, the pentadrachms (trichrysa) of Soth the octodrachms (mnæia) and totadrachms of Philadelphus and Arsine were nicely struck for the ruling royalty, and were used mainly for international exchange in foreign commerce. These attractive items were passed carefully among important outsiders to impress them with their sheer, barbaric splendor of wealth.

For the handling and exchange of gold coins, a special, royal Mint official from Alexandria handled all worn out specie for recoining. No banks or private money changers were allowed to handle gold currency. This constantly aroused the ire of foreign traders and merchants who had to sit out a slow, red-tape process of coin remintage. The use of money previous to the Ptolemaic Egypt had circulated in large quantities both foreign and Egyptian, but only the upper crust benefited as the natives used the barter system.

Some of the bronze pieces of the Ptolemies were actually ten times as heavy as the English penny, while gold topped the British sovereign three and a half times in weight. The splendor of the gold specie speaks well for the abundance of the metal that must have been dug from the mountains between the Red Sea and the Nile. Since there were no banks in which to deposit their money, the ancients invariably used jars to tuck away coins for a rainy day, and this fact accounts for most of the finds. About twenty years ago one of these treasure troves was unearthed near Kench in Upper Egypt. In this numismatic discovery, there were five gold and two hundred silver coins, all in nearly perfect condition with tiny patches of gray silver oxide on the gold from the integrating surfaces of the silver coins which suggested they had lain together since 144 B.C. In another important find were representations of the uraeus of Egypt, the same serpent that erects itself above the Pharaonic crown. On one coin a male cobra stood erect upon his tail, and on another a female was just as erect on hers. A third coin bore the male and female serpents facing each other.

Ancient coins are like picture paintings of the past, carrying pictorial and authoritative value. We learn much from our study of them, and find that the Ptolemaic Pharaohs were greatly proud of their Macedonian profiles. Berenice the beautiful was possessed of a Greek look, and a straight, pointed nose highlighted her facial expression. Ptolemaic coin carving featured the renowned center piece on the back of most of their issues bearing the impressive Macedonian eagle, straight, erect, defiant, its claws grasping a sheaf of thunderbolts as all feathered creatures of Zeus the Thunderer should do. The sharp, artistic display of wings, breast, neck and legs is the ancient fore runner of the American eagle on the ten dollar gold pieces and the die cutting of that era matches the best our modern engravers produce today, and in some cases surpasses it.

Congratulations!

KEY TO KOLIT CHART

Kolit Position. K.12, for example. A Coin struck off center, blank portion to the center, the design, (struck off center), to the outside rim of the circle in 12 o'clock position. Important: The coin in order to find its true location must always be placed in a perfect upright position, then by moving it around the clock design, with the blank or off struck part, always to the center, one can determine the Kolit number very readily.

Off Center Degree: To determine the amount the coin is Off Center (O.C.) take the blank portion, dividing it to equal parts to center of coin, multiply by 2 and you have your fraction.

Yesterday, December 2nd, I found, while looking through some change, a 1914-D cent! The Obv. is V.G. and Rev. is G. This is something I've always dreamed of finding, but never thought I would.

I am sixteen years old and have been collecting three years. I want to say that of all the coin magazines I've read, yours is the best for helpful information and human interest.

—Jon A. Heim
Phila., Pa.

—O—

On behalf of our local coin club I would like to submit a "find". The finder is Miss May Hardcastle, Mobridge, South Dakota, a member of our club. Miss Hardcastle is employed by the J. C. Penney Co. and she found a 1914-D penny in very good condition.

—Muriel A. Himrich
Selby, South Dakota

—O—

Enclosed is $2.00 for a renewal of my subscription. It should cover me until Dec. 1960. While checking $5.00 worth of pennies from the bank one roll contained 7 Indian head cents, one being a 1909-S V.G. I was very surprised to find a scarce coin like this in circulation.

—James McQuillan

—O—

Enclosed find my check for four dollars to renew Mike Ammerman's subscription for the Flying Eaglet. I enjoy the magazine very much.

I notice that some 1945 dimes have a small S and some have a large S mint mark. Is there any reason for the difference in them?

—Melvin L. West
Kenvil, N. J.

In my collecting of coins I have found two 1946 Lincoln coins (pennies) one a (B.U.) Very Fine with a date that can hardly be seen. The other also is a 1946 Lincoln but is much smaller and very thin, the metal is very porous and has never been polished, yet it is perfect in every detail.

I would like to know about these coins if you can help me.

—Ben J. Hibbs
Buckhannon, W. Va.
P.S. I enjoy your magazine very much, and tell all my friends.

I am sending in $2.00 for my Uncle John. He wants to subscribe to the "Flying Eaglet".

I have been very lucky today because when I bought some Indian pennies from a friend he gave me some foreign coins. In my surprise I luckily found a 1723 Halfpenny of the Rosa Americana series in the foreign coins and I also found a 1787 Hercules Head cent of the state of Conn.

I am enjoying the "Flying Eaglet" a great deal and am happy I sent for it.

Proofs from "Down Under"

Capture Canadian's Fancy

By Harold Don Allen

C. F. "Chuck" Martin of the Sudbury, Ontario, Coin Shop, thinks he can go the rest of the collecting fraternity one better when it comes to the latest interest in "frosted" proofs. He can show you Australia's big frosted copper penny, a 1957 proof from Perth Mint — and he considers it the most beautiful coin struck anywhere and bearing that date.

Mr. Martin likes his Australian coinage both as a dealer and as a collector — we met him at his bourse at the September C.N.A. Convention in Ottawa — but his frosted penny is the only one he has seen, and is not for sale.

Australian coinage, based on the shillings and pence of Britain, though there is talk of conversion, is attractively designed and expertly struck. Limited quantities of proof sets and select uncirculated have been released since 1955, some say 1954, Mr. Martin reports. Proof coins come at a premium of two shillings per coin, select uncirculateds at six pence premium each. Mr. Martin has been informed by a correspondent "down under" that the selects really are rejected proofs — and he says that examination seems to show this to be the case.

The ten sets of 1957 Australian proofs Mr. Martin took with him to Ottawa were gone in a few hours, at $5 a set. The florin (2/-), shilling, 6d and 3d were from Melbourne mint, with the big copper penny from Perth.

Mr. Martin collects the Australian series by dates, trading with several collectors on this continent and overseas. No catalogue is available, but he considers the June Numismatist listing of pennies revealing and valuable. He finds far more satisfaction in Australian series than in inflated North American decimal series — "far beyond the means of the father of five children."

Mr. Martin's shop is at 510 Tedman Avenue in Sudbury, and he will be pleased to correspond with other collectors interested in Australian numismatic series.

2,500 ATTEND SHOW

An estimated 2,500 crowded the Salon Saguenay of Montreal's Queen Elizabeth Hotel on "Coin Day", December 6, to view what a leading collector has termed the finest show of numismatic material ever held in Canada. The event sponsored by the Montreal Coin Club as an educational venture, and the excellent turnout was in response to radio and press publicity in both Montreal languages.

The exhibit, which saw first place and the Walter Macklin Award go to Canada's distinguished numismatist, J. Douglas Ferguson of Rock Island, Que., for a display of early Canadian historical and financial items, also was strong in paper money, from playing cards to the present day, and tokens.

LETTERS from READERS

Dear Sir:

Enclosing two dollars. Please send me the Flying Eagle for the year 1959.

Thanks a lot for the Canadian Section which brought me Friends and Connections.

—Joseph I. Sturm
Bronx, N. Y.

Enclosed find check for renewal of my subscription to F.E. also for a gift subscription for a friend.

I might add that one of my pet peeves is to pick up a book, newspaper or Mag. and find a page missing or some item neatly cut out. Therefore I refuse to mutilate my Flying Eagle Magazine just to use the order blanks. As a suggestion, why don't you insert order blanks in F.E. in some way so they can be used without cutting up the Magazine. I'm pretty proud of my Flying Eagle publications and still have each copy. You have a very fine magazine and I sincerely wish you much success in the forthcoming year of '59.

—Henry A. Taets
Goshen, Indiana

I recently received your magazine as the start of my first subscription. I am very much pleased with it, especially since one of the ads saved me $5.00 over the lowest prices in another coin magazine. Already it has paid for itself!

Just one comment. The anecdote on P. six about the farmer and the $15.00 bill is ridiculous. At first I thought it was amusing, but then I realized that even if the farmer did give the two swindlers 2 $7 bills, he's still out the buck for the apples. So HE gets the raw end of the deal after all.

—Alan Hogenauer

N.Y.C., N.Y.

P.S. Grading sheet is fabulous!

Our check covers the enclosed subscription and 2 dozen of your complete type service on grading (53 photos on heavy gloss stock), at $1.80 per dozen. Your grading sheets, incidentally, are finding a ready market.

The American Coin Arcade

Paul F. Lawless
Ocean Park, Calif.

I would like to purchase four (4) extra copies of your Sept. 3, 1958 edition. Your article with photos on coin grading is excellent and several members of our newly formed Camden Coin Club want copies.

Numismatically yours,

—Matt Rothert

(Vice Pres.) of A.N.A.
Camden, Ark.

Editor's note:

We are all out of back issues, but we do have a quantity of the Grading Sheets on heavier stock.

At the death of Alexander in 323 B.C., a standard measure for coinage was called the Attic which became well established throughout eastern Mediterranean nations. This standard included gold and silver, and the metals ratio to one another was 10:1, or 20 silver drachmae (5 tetradrachms of 17 1/2 grammes) equalled one gold stater, a didrachm weighing 8.575 gm.) Then about 312 there was a gradual change to the Phoenician standard which was a combined issue of gold pentadrachms and tetradrachms. This Phoenician standard continued to regulate coin production until the conquest of Egypt by Rome, though Ptolemy the Second made a further change in denomination.

Ptolemy Soter of Egypt at first copied the same monetary principles of Alexander, and struck off the same silver and gold specie of Attic rating which was used by the entire Hellenistic world. Then in a sudden reversal of policy initiated an altered standard which created lighter silver coins with the object in mind to adjust these issues to the prevailing prices of the precious metal, which was rapidly rising while that of gold was lowering, and for a time Soter's policy was popular. Later he lessened the weight of his silver coins to the point which was identical with that used in the Phoenician cities, and this standard was accepted and used until the end of the Ptolemaic reign.

The Phoenician cities of Tyre, Sidon, Gaza, Joppa, Ptolemais-Ake set up mints that issued this new coinage, and coins from these mints can be classified by the mint marks, and by the special form given the name of the monarch. In the 25th year of Soter's reign, the title Soter appears on Phoenician coinage as the title of the First Ptolemy.

Ptolemy the Second's queen must have been a remarkable woman because no royal female of the Ptolemaic rule until the last, Cleopatra, ever wielded greater political influence. On the coins she took her place beside her husband, and had a statue of herself at the Odeum at Athens where the series of Egyptian Kings was set up.

Queen Hatshepsut, often called the Queen Elizabeth of Egyptian history, was the wife of Tothmes III, who was one of the first kings to make war across the Isthmus of Suez, utilized many things as money. Taxes were collected in gold and silver, grain, rolls, of linen, cattle, gold necklaces, copper and electrum which was used mainly in building decorations. In making the great temple balance for weighing the offerings to their all powerful god Re at Heliopolis, nearly two hundred and twelve pounds of gold, and four hundred and sixty-one pounds of silver were consumed. The quantity of metal in personal ornaments was often adjusted with a view to their serving as ready made ornaments of currency.

Almost from the start, gold and silver were the universal choice for the most popular metallic substance over the commoner bronze and iron for monetary standard, though the latter two for awhile had their period of acceptance. Durable, portable, easily divisible, with a great power of resisting destruction, gold and silver in due time came into their own in ancient Egypt, and also throughout the ancient world.

It is hard to believe that though the Greeks employed slaves to work in their money-making mints, the Ptolemies were against slavery in Egypt. They allowed it to a certain extent, but imposed special regulations and heavy taxes on slave owners, because they didn't want foreign slaves to compete with Egyptian natives.

To Ptolemy I goes the numismatic honor of being the first person to have his portrait impressed on a coin. It took real courage to defy the centuries' old superstition that only the gods should have their places on currency, and that sudden death by lightning awaited the first offender who would dare such an evil. Even a man as brave as Alexander the Great hadn't undertaken such a dangerous task. But Ptolemy feared nothing, human or spiritual, as he was one of, if not the most trusted officer of Alexander. It was he who built the great city of Alexandria, and kept the body of his revered general preserved in honey, and entombed it with great pomp and ceremony that might herald that of an ancient Egyptian god. Ptolemy contributed much to science, literature, and art, but also he set a new style in coin portraiture that was copied for centuries later.

In the old kingdom of Egypt, transactions involving great values, gold and copper rings of a fixed weight were exchanged as money. This ring currency is the world's oldest known method of purchase, and silver by far out-ranked gold in value. These rings, known as "Deben" weighed three and one quarter ounces which was considered standard. They were constantly used up to the time of the Ptolemies.

During the Persian occupation of Egypt, coined money was introduced. Aryandes, who was governor of Egypt under Cambyses and Darius, struck silver coins in imitation of the gold Darics of his sovereign, in which act of presumption he was condemned to death. Though stamped money was not used by the ancient Egyptians, there is evidence that weights and measures were invented by them long before the Greeks existed as a nation.

JUST ONE MAN'S OPINION

The Carson City Dollars are the most underpriced series of all coins minted. All one has to do is check the number minted of each year and you will see that there will never be enough to supply our five (5) million or more (est.) collectors. Take the 1885 with only 228,000 minted. This would be one for about every twenty-one collectors. Second comes the 1881 with only 296,000 and so on.

I have a few sets of the 1880 through 1885 complete in Strictly! Brilliant Uncirculated.

For set of six (6) $21.95

Below are my prices for single coins . . . all Brilliant Uncirculated.

1878-CC Proof Surface.....$ 6.00	1882-CC Brill. Unc. 4.00	1890-CC Proof Surface..... 6.00
1879-CC Proof Surface..... 20.00	1883-CC Brill. Unc. 4.00	1890-CC Brill. Unc. 4.50
1880-CC Brill. Unc. 6.00	1884-CC Brill. Unc. 4.00	1891-CC Brill. Unc. 4.50
1881-CC Brill. Unc. 5.00	1885-CC Brill. Unc. $ 5.00	1892-CC Brill. Unc. 5.50
1882-CC Proof Surface..... 5.50	1885-CC Proof Surface..... 7.00

Please keep in mind that I guarantee every dollar I sell to be Strictly Brilliant Uncirculated. Money back guarantee plus return postage if not pleased.

My second offering for this month is, in my opinion, a small set with a future.

The War Time Silver Nickel consisting of 11 coins minted 1942 to 1945. (see Red Book).

This set in Brilliant Uncirculated is beautiful and also underpriced in this booming coin market.

My price for the complete set is . . $5.50 Only until present stock is sold.

The 1943-D is of course in this set and this is one that I compare in value to the 1942-D which is selling today for $4.50 each.
